PORTSMOUTH MEN

Will Be Present at Meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms in the First National Bank Tonight in Regard to Matters Pertaining to Holding a Successful Fair.

Tonight in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the First National Bank, the committee in charge of the arrangements for the Maysville Tobacco Fair and Corn Show will be favored by having with them two of the men connected with the Portsmouth Business Men's Club, who will give information as to how their annual Korn Karival is conducted.

Mr. Albert Zoelner, president of the Portsmouth Business Men's Club, a prominent jeweler of that city, and Mr. B. G. Harris, a director of the same body and a photographer, will be the visitors for the evening. These men will come on special invitation from Secretary Boone of the local Chamber of Commerce and will be ready to answer all questions pertaining to the success of such a fair or to offer suggestions. They will make no specific address. The members of the Special Events committee are especially urged to attend and others desiring to come are invited.

Plans from now on will go forward with a rush until the fair begins. Active preparation is being made for the fair and although the exact dates have not been announced it will be held either November 23, 24, 25 or November 30, December 1 and 2. The reason for the doubt as to the dates is caused by the fact that November 30 the first announced date for the opening of the fair is Thanksgiving and there is some little desire to have it the week earlier.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Third Street M. E. Church will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the church. Every member is requested to bring a visitor or new member with them. Business of importance.

MRS. W. E. STALLCUP, Secretary. MRS. W. F. THOMAS, President.

MORE APPROVAL.

COLD FACTS

Put Hughes Far Ahead of Wilson—Figures on Primaries and Registration Predict a Victory for G. O. P. Nameless, Asserits Willcox in Statement Quoting Reports From Many States.

New York, October 23.—"The people of the United States have made up their minds in favor of Mr. Hughes against Mr. Wilson, and that is all there is to it," said William R. Willcox, chairman of the Republican National Committee, today.

"They have given positive proof of it on numerous occasions this fall, proof that cannot be denied, misunderstood or misinterpreted. In a dozen States, from Maine to California, from Michigan to Maryland, where the voters have had a chance to stand up and be counted, they have unfailingly taken advantage of the opportunity to show their determined preference for Mr. Hughes instead of Mr. Wilson. There is no exception.

"This is the thing that counts. It doesn't make any difference what claims campaign managers put forth. It is the way the people vote that does the real talking.

This Is the Way They Vote
"Here is how they have been voting: In California, 307,793 Republicans voted in the primaries and only 77,860 Democrats. In Maine, the votes were counted at an election, and Maine's answer was emphatic and conclusive. There were 79,902 Republicans and 66,547 Democrats. That was after a campaign, hotly contested on both sides, and where the Democratic managers made support of President Wilson, the cardinal issue. New Jersey and Massachusetts show exactly the same situation. In each State there was a Democratic contest; with one side supported by the administration; in each State the Administration candidate was defeated, and in each State the total Democratic vote was far below that of the Republicans.

"In New Jersey, Senator Martine, seeking re-election, polled 50,961; Judge Wescott, who had the administration supported against Martine, polled 29,627; this was a hard fight, which attracted attention all over the country because of the efforts of President Wilson's friends to defeat Martine. While this bitter contest was going on there was a good natured campaign in the Republican primaries between Joseph Frelinghuysen and Franklin Murphy, each of whom polled more votes than both Martine and Wescott combined. Frelinghuysen won with 89,361, to 81,480 for Murphy. The total Republican vote was 187,414; the total Democratic vote 119,513. In this primary, the boro of Princeton, where President Wilson is exceptionally well known, cast 575 Republican votes and only 262 Democratic votes. Four years ago at the election Wilson had 863 and the combined opposition, 706. These figures show what a change has occurred in Wilson's home boro.

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES CERTIFIED TO LEWIS

Frankfort, Ky., October 23.—The Republican campaign committee certified today that it had spent $32,000 and the Democratic campaign committee certified that it has spent $27,000. All of the Presidential electors have filed with Secretary of State Lewis their expense accounts except Jackson Morris, of Pineville, the Republican elector for the Eleventh District, and Dennis Dundon, of Paris, the Democratic elector for the Seventh district.

Morris is in Laurel County, speaking tonight at McWhorter, and could not be located by telephone but it is probable that he will mail his statement so that it will bear the post mark of today before midnight. Dundon mailed his statement today, but it had not reached Secretary of State Lewis by midnight.

HUGHES OR WILSON?
ROOSEVELT'S ANSWER

"Against Mr. Wilson's combination of grace in elocution with facility in action; against his record of words unbacked by deeds or betrayed by deeds, we see Mr. Hughes' rugged and uncompromising straightforwardness of character and action in every office he has held. We put the man who thinks and speaks directly, and whose words have always been made good, against the man whose adroit and facile elocution is used to conceal his plans or his want of plans. The next four years may well be years of tremendous national strain. Which of the two men do you, the American people, wish at the helm during these four years; the man who has been actually tried and found wanting, or the man whose whole career in public office is a guarantee of his power and good faith? But one answer is possible; and it must be given by the American people through the election of Charles Evans Hughes as President of the United States."—Roosevelt in Maine Speech.

GOMPERS AND THE ADAMSON LAW

President Wilson is taking a great deal of credit to himself for the passage of the Adamson law, which purports to be an eight-hour law for railroad employees engaged in train operation. In his public utterances he denies that he was coerced into signing the bill, and asserts that he did it because it was right; not because he was intimidated.

Many will dispute the statement that it is in reality an eight-hour law. It provides no penalty for the railroads, should they continue to work their men in train operation ten or twelve hours a day. It simply substitutes eight hours for ten hours in wage contracts, as a basis for determining wages.

But assuming that it is an eight-hour law, how can Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, approve it? Mr. Gompers always has taken a very determined stand against governmental interference in the relations between employers and employees in private enterprise. In the Philadelphia convention of the American Federation of Labor in 1914, Mr. Gompers led the fight against a resolution which provided for a legislative eight-hour day. The report of the committee, which was adopted by the convention, declared:

"The American Federation of Labor, as in the past, again declares that the question of the regulation of wages and hours of labor should be undertaken through trade-union activity and not be made subjects of law through legislative enactment."

This declaration was reaffirmed at the San Francisco convention of the American Federation of Labor in 1915.

Mr. Gompers has gone on record on this question on other occasions than conventions of the American Federation of Labor. In fact, he has always held to that position and expressed himself whenever the opportunity presented itself.

Speaking before the Committee on Industrial Interstate and Relations of the Constitutional Convention of New York on May 26, 1915, Mr. Gompers, among other things, said:

"I should say that I should not favor a proposition which would put power into the hands of the legislature to regulate the minimum wage for men in private employment, or for the regulation of the hours of labor of men in private employment. . . . Let me say this: that reading history as I have, I am chary of placing in the power of any governmental agency, power to regulate the conditions of employment of the workers of our country."

President Wilson has done what Mr. Gompers always has warned workers against in his speeches and writings. Still, Mr. Gompers is supporting Mr. Wilson as a "friend of labor." Does it follow that Mr. Gompers is not a friend of labor? Or is he so extremely partisan that he can eat crow and appear to relish it? Certainly it is up to Mr. Gompers to explain, for no matter whether the Adamson law is an eight-hour law, or merely a measure for the regulation of wages, it is a direct contradiction of the avowed policy of the American Federation of Labor.

But there is another interesting phase of the Adamson law. It provides that in wage contracts eight hours of service shall be considered the basis for wages. The present wage contracts of the railroad brotherhoods provide for "100 miles or less, ten hours or less" as the basis for a day's pay. In other words, if a train crew makes a run of 100 miles in six hours, they are paid for ten hours of work. If they require fifteen hours to make 100 miles, they are paid one and one-half day's wages.

Suppose the railroads should decide to accept the eight-hour law in good faith and apply it by requiring eight hours of work for eight hours' pay. The law does not say "eight hours or less." How could it affect men in passenger and fast freight service, who now work less than eight hours? Would it not operate to reduce their wages, or increase their hours of labor? Would not they oppose it? Of course they would, and the chiefs of the railroad brotherhoods would support them in their opposition.

When the final chapter of the railroad wage controversy is written, the railroad men may discover that President Wilson, the "friend of labor," has handed them a political goldbrick and tied it firmly around their necks.—Luke Grant.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL VOTE OF 1914 WILL ELECT HUGHES

The majorities given to Republican candidates for Congress for 1914 are sufficient to elect Hughes and Fairbanks, declared United States Senator Charles Curtis, chairman of the Republican national senatorial committee, at the party headquarters.

Kansas statesman, one of the noted "come-backs" of 1914, also declared that the Republicans will elect the nine new senators necessary to control the Senate, as well as re-electing every Republican senator now before the people for another term.

Senator Curtis said:

"We have already made one gain in Maine. The others will be in New York, New Jersey, Indiana (two), Ohio, West Virginia, Nebraska and Montana. We also have good fighting chances in Nevada, Arizona, Missouri and Maryland.

"Hughes and Fairbanks will be elected by a sweeping majority, and the vote for Republican members of Congress in 1914 is sufficient evidence of this fact.

"Furthermore, Hughes will be stronger than the Republican candidates for Congress, except in a few notable instances, and so will carry more Congressional districts than we did in 1914. On this point it is significant that in the Maine election the Republican Congressional vote is larger than it was in 1914, and it is a foregone conclusion that we will carry the House."

MATTER OF REAL IMPORTANCE

On Tuesday, November 7th, the voters of Mason County, in addition to casting their votes for the National and Congressional tickets, will have an opportunity to decide the question whether or not the Fiscal affairs of the county shall continue in the hands of the Board of Magistrates or whether a Commission composed of three members, elected from the county as a whole, with the County Judge—shall have complete charge of the county business affairs. The Ledger firmly believes Mason county would be greatly benefited by a change to the Commission Form of Government. Certainly the county would not be taking a step backward should the change be made. To vote for a change to the Commission Plan you must vote YES.

One thing is certain—a protective tariff never destroyed an American industry but has built up many hundreds of industries small and great. A free-trade law has destroyed or curtailed many industries and never helped build up one.

The Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes, a pacifist, calls Theodore Roosevelt "a monstrous survival of a pre-neocene age." Now we understand why somebodies recently called the Colonel "out-of-date."

We are gratified to note that in adopting a new standardized flag the Administration did not select a modified garter snake bearing the Wilsonian motto: "Tread on Me!"—Boston Transcript.

WILSON'S PERU PROTEGE IS WORSE THAN HUERTA

Recognized Benavides as President After He Had Obtained Power in a Sister Republic by Treachery and Violence.

ACT DOES NOT SQUARE WITH SMUG DICTUM IN HIS SPEECH

Latin American Diplomats Amazed When They Read the President's Explanation of His Mexican Policy—Informed Their Governments That Mr. Wilson's Personal Whims Doubtless Were to Be His Guides in Conducting This Government's Latin-American Policy.

Latin American diplomats are amazed at the statement in President Wilson's speech of acceptance: "So long as the power of recognition rests with me the Government of the United States will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence."

This is the President's explanation of his refusal to recognize Huerta and of his Mexican policy. Yet the records show that President Wilson has deliberately violated this dictum in several instances since the case of Huerta arose.

The most flagrant example was the President's recognition extended to Col. Benavides, head of the revolutionary Government in Peru, in February, 1914. His Government was founded on assassination, established by assassination and had no vestige of constitutional authority back of it. It came into power on February 4, 1914, when Col. Benavides led the garrison troops against the national palace at Lima, imprisoned President Billinghurst and assassinated the Minister of War and all others who opposed the coup d'etat.

More flagrant than Mexico. Minister McMillin reported these facts fully to Washington and assumed that this Government would decline to sanction the newly established regime. The case was identical with the Huerta case in Mexico, except a much more flagrant violation of the spirit of popular government. Huerta had Madero and Vice-President Suarez imprisoned, but he became President of Mexico under provisions of the constitution providing for the succession of the Minister of Foreign Affairs upon the disability of the President. Huerta's accession to the Presidency was confirmed by the Mexican Congress.

Benavides came into power simply by killing those who opposed him. His acts had no basis whatever in the constitution of his country and were not confirmed by the Peruvian Congress. His sole backing was a junta of conspirators who forced their will on the unapproving people by means of ready rifle bullets. Under these circumstances Minister McMillin naturally assumed that President Wilson would have nothing to do with Benavides and his junta. The President shortly before this had stated in a speech at Mobile, Ala.: "We must follow the course of high principle, not expediency, no matter what the pressure. To do otherwise would be untrue to ourselves."

Envoys to Surprised.

Mr. McMillin was therefore mildly surprised when he was instructed by President Wilson to call on the newly established Benavides and graciously confer the recognition of the United States Government upon him.

In explaining this the President simply said that "expediency dictated the recognition of the revolutionary government of Peru." He told his advisers that he had not liked the personality of Billinghurst. He was charged also with the news that Billinghurst had intended to dissolve the Peruvian Congress, which the President said would have been an unconstitutional act.

Latin American diplomats at the time were astonished to learn of the President's action in Peru. They found that it was impossible to know where the President stood on any matter of principle, and informed their governments that the President's personal whims doubtless were to be his guidance in conducting this Government's Latin-American policy.

POTATO BREAD AND ROLLS

Bolled Potatoes Substituted for Part of Flour Makes an Appetizing Product as Nutritious as Ordinary Bread — Keeps Fresh Longer.

Washington—Excellent bread can be made by using 3 pounds of bolled and mashed potato and 2½ pounds of good bread flour, according to the baking specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The bread so compounded has a rich brown crust and tender and elastic crumb. It has an appetizing odor and a very agreeable taste, which is preferred by many to that of bread made wholly from flour. When made according to the directions given below, potato bread contains more mineral matter, fiber, and moisture, but otherwise, in composition and nutritive value, is practically the same as ordinary bread. Its higher moisture content helps to keep it fresh several days longer than ordinary bread. In localities where there is a surplus of potatoes or where they are very cheap, potato bread costs less to make than all-flour bread. This would prove an excellent way in which to utilize cull potatoes. Even, however, where the relative market prices of potatoes and flour are such that there is no economy in substituting potato for flour, the individual flavor and keeping quality of potato bread make it desirable as a variant in the family diet.

Potato bread as known abroad is made generally with potato flour, about 10 parts of this commonly being used with 90 parts of wheat flour or a mixture of rye and wheat flour. As potato flour and dried potato flakes are not accessible to the American housewife, the specialists conducted a series of successful experiments in using bolled potatoes with flour.

It was found that a mixture of bolled potatoes and wheat flour, in the proportions given in the accompanying recipes, gave a very desirable loaf, a trifle smaller than that made from all flour, but wholesome and nutritious. Figured to a basis of equal moisture content, the bolled potato would represent 25 per cent and the flour 75 per cent of the mixture.

The following methods for making potato bread, worked out in the baking laboratory, are recommended:

Potato Bread—Straight Dough Method

For four one-pound loaves, the following ingredients are required:

3 pounds of bolled and peeled potatoes.

2½ pounds of good bread flour.

3 level tablespoonfuls of sugar.

1½ level tablespoonfuls of salt.

2 cakes of compressed yeast.

3 tablespoonfuls of lukewarm water.

Wash thoroughly and boil in their skins about 12 potatoes of medium size. Cook them until they are very tender. Drain, peel, and mash them while hot, being carefully to leave no lumps. Allow the mashed potato to cool to 86 degrees or until lukewarm.

To 3 pounds (5 solidly packed ½ pint cups) of the mashed potato, add the yeast, which has been rubbed smooth in a cup with 3 tablespoonfuls of lukewarm water. To get all the yeast, rinse the cup with the remaining tablespoonful of water and add this also to the potato. Next add the salt, the sugar, and about 4 ounces of the flour, (1 scant half-pint of sifted flour.) Mix thoroughly with the hand, but do not add any more water at this stage.

Cover the mixing bowl to avoid the formation of a crust on top and place out of the way of drafts to rise, where the temperature can not fall below 80 degrees or be much higher than 88 degrees. Where the housewife has no thermometer, she should see that the dough in all the risings is kept moderately warm, but not up to blood heat. Any water used in mixing the dough should be moderately warm, but by no means hot. This sponge, if kept at the proper temperature, should, after two hours, become quite light.

To this well-risen sponge, which now will be found to be quite soft, add the remainder of the flour, kneading thoroughly until a smooth and elastic dough has been formed. The dough must be very stiff, since the bolled potato contains a large amount of water which causes the dough to soften as it rises. Do not add water to the dough unless it is absolutely necessary to work in the flour. Set the dough back to rise again, temperature at about 86 degrees until it has trebled in volume, which will require another hour or two. Then divide the dough into four approximately equal parts, reserving a tiny lump weighing 2 or 3 ounces for an "indicator." Shape the sample into a ball and press it into the bottom of a small tumbler with straight sides. The glass should be slightly warmed. Note the volume of the ball of dough in the tumbler and mark the glass at twice this volume.

Mold the four portions into loaves and place in greased pans which have been slightly warmed. Place the glass containing the "indicator" beside the pans and let all rise, under proper temperature, until the "indicator" shows that it has doubled in volume. Then place the loaves in the oven and bake in a good, steady heat (400 to 425 degrees) for 45 minutes.

To test oven. Where an oven thermometer is at hand, a convenient test will be to put a teaspoonful of flour in an earthen dish in the oven. If this flour becomes light brown evenly throughout in 5 minutes' time, the oven is right for bread baking. If the flour scorches in that time, the oven is too hot.

Potato Bread—Sponge Method

For four one-pound loaves are required:

3 pounds of bolled and peeled potatoes.

2½ pounds of good bread flour.

3 level tablespoonfuls of sugar.

1½ level tablespoonfuls of salt.

1 cake of compressed yeast.

4 tablespoonfuls of water.

Holl, peel, and mash the potatoes as directed in the straight dough method. In the evening mix 1½ pounds, or 2½ solidly packed half-pint cups, of the cool mashed potato, add to it the salt, 4 ounces of flour (1 scant half-pint cupful) and the yeast rubbed smooth with the water, reserving one spoonful to rinse the cup.

In the morning add the remainder of the potato, the sugar, and the rest of the flour. Knead thoroughly until a smooth and very stiff dough is formed. After working the dough, set it to rise according to the directions given for the second rising under the straight dough method. Thereafter handle the dough exactly in the same way as is given under the straight dough method.

Potato Bread Rolls

Very good rolls can be made from a similar mixture of bolled potatoes and flour by adding shortening and sugar. The following proportions will yield one dozen small rolls:

8 ounces of bolled and peeled potatoes.

6 ounces of sifted flour.

1-3 cake of compressed yeast.

3-4 level teaspoonful of salt.

2 tablespoonfuls of lukewarm water.

2 tablespoonfuls of sugar.

2 tablespoonfuls of butter.

"Two tablespoonfuls of powdered milk, added to the dough, will greatly improve the quality of the rolls. Although milk itself or cream may be used, it must be borne in mind that they will increase the liquid content.

Holl, peel and mash the potatoes as directed for bread making. Add in order, to this the salt, the powdered milk, (if used) the yeast rubbed smooth and mixed with the water, and lastly two tablespoonfuls of flour.

This mixture stand at a temperature of about 86 degrees until the dough begins to collapse. Add to this sponge the butter, the sugar, and the remainder of the flour and, if necessary, enough more flour to make a very stiff dough. Knead thoroughly until a smooth dough which is no longer sticky has been formed. Set back to rise again, and when the dough has trebled in volume, knead lightly, form into small balls and place, not too close together, in greased pans. Allow to rise until double in volume, as shown by the "indicator," and bake 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven, at about 400 degrees.

FLEMING COUNTY FAIR IS SUCCESS

Second Agricultural Exhibit Pleases

Large Crowds That Attend—Fiscal Court Filled to Appropriation, But Farmers Will Arrange For Pay.

The Growers' Tobacco Warehouse in Flemingsburg, Ky., was the scene of one of the most successful agricultural fairs ever held in the State. It closed Saturday after a two days' exhibition of the products of that county. This is the second effort toward developing in Fleming county a model agricultural fair, and the Agricultural Agent, W. H. Clayton, was well pleased with the outcome of this year's work.

The fair is gotten up by the County Agent, Flemingsburg Board of Commerce and a few energetic farmers of the county, and there was no charges for any of the features. The crowds were rather disappointing on account of the severity of the weather, but there is no doubt that the show was a decided success and the promoters are to be congratulated on their efforts.

The various superintendents had all details worked out and everything went off as smooth as clock work. The woman's department had a large number of entries and some high-class needle work was exhibited. Other departments which were largely patronized were the Boys' Pig Club contest, tobacco show, corn exhibit, fruit and cream exhibits.

Demonstrative Booth Attractive

The demonstrative booth, which was arranged by the county agent and W. H. Shockley, deserved special recognition. In this booth they had samples of practically all agricultural products of the county. Various farm papers and bulletins from the Kentucky Station and the Department of Agriculture were placed where the farmers could obtain them. Specimens of profitable crops for the farmers which are not grown in Fleming county were shown. The advantage gained by spraying and pruning fruit trees was clearly brought out by samples of apples from the same orchard where part of the trees had been sprayed and the remainder had not. The sprayed fruit was large, smooth and well shaped, while the other was small, irregular and unattractive.

Clayton Arranges Splendid Contest for Boys

The Boys' Pig Club demonstration would have pleased even the most pessimistic farmer. There were fifteen entries and the boys proved that they were the coming hog men of their county. The pigs show that they had not only been fed regularly but that it had been given them in such proportions as to give the greatest gain per pound of food fed. Their records were, as a rule, well kept, and results were tabulated by the boys themselves. The pigs were so good that it was no easy matter to decide which of the exhibit and the various special prizes. From one to three pounds gain per day was recorded, and the cost per pound varied from 3.9 cents to 8 cents per pound.

This feature of the fair was due wholly to County Agent W. H. Clayton and it is doubtful if there has been a better club contest in the State. He has spent much time in getting the boys interested and helping them keep their records. Orval Flannery won the contest, with Geo. Belt and James Smith getting second and third prizes, respectively. Special prizes were won by Orval Flannery and W. F. Schwartz. In a case like this it is too bad that there can not be a prize for every one of the boys, but they will have a chance next year and the boys who did not win this year should work harder than ever to win next time.

The tobacco show was unusually large for a small county exhibition and there was some splendid tobacco. No doubt some of it will be sent to the Great Lexington show in November. There was more than fifteen entries, and all were of excellent quality. The corn show had twenty-five entries, and as a whole was an excellent show. There were some very good samples shown and many of the exhibitors expressed themselves as being willing to come to the state show held during Farmers' Week in Lexington.

For the past several months the farmers have taken much interest in dairy products and have been slipping out a great deal of cream. The cream exhibit at the fair consisted of twenty-five samples. The quality was high and for the first show in the county the management is to be congratulated.

Professors C. W. Matthews, E. J. Kinney and G. N. McCarty of the College of Agriculture and Kentucky Experiment Station judged the fruit and horticultural products, grain and Boys' Pig Club contest respectively. J. W. Wesen of the Department of Economics of the Experiment Station talked for thirty minutes on marketing the farm products.

Fight Will Be Made to Keep County Agent

Unfortunately for the farmers of Fleming county, the fiscal court refused to make an appropriation to keep the Agricultural Agent for another year. The farmers of the county are very much upset over the sudden unjust ruling of the court and are organizing to make the fight to get the appropriation through. It would indeed be a shame for the county to lose their agent after he has been of so much help to them. It is easy for any man to see what he has been doing for the farmers of that county. Some of the most enterprising farmers of the county say that they will not let him go. In the event that the court will not make the appropriation the farmers will make up the part which the county has to pay by popular subscription and he will be kept to help the farmers to more enterprising and scientific farming.

WOODROW WOBBLIES

Woodrow Wilson, while president of Princeton university, was requested by Prof. Frank Parsons, of the bureau of economic research, in September, 1905, to join with others in signing this declaration.

"1. We favor the eight-hour day.
"2. Believing that the eight-hour day means a longer and richer life, a fairer diffusion of wealth and power, a better citizenship and a higher civilization through leisure for education, recreation, civic and social life, we welcome each step in the progress of the eight-hour movement and earnestly hope for the success of the typographical union in their efforts to secure the eight-hour day."

Woodrow Wilson refused to sign either of the propositions, saying:

"It seems to me that nothing of this sort can be decided thus in the abstract and that no valuable conclusion can be arrived at except by a real discussion of specific cases."

This is what Woodrow Wilson then really thought of the eight-hour day--what he probably now thinks about it, when permitted to think free from the prospect of an election.

What will he think after March 4, whether elected or defeated?

CARRANZA FORCE LED INTO AMBUSH

By Villa Band--Heavy Fighting Between Chihuahua and Santa Ysabel--No Details Received, Says Gen. Gonzalez.

El Paso, Texas, October 23--Francisco Villa led the Carranza vanguard under General Carlos Oznna into an ambush between Santa Ysabel and San Andres, on the western division of the Mexican Northwestern railroad, according to a report received by one of the Federal agents here today. It is stated. According to this report, Villa retreated from a position outside of San Andres, forty miles on the railroad west of Chihuahua City, toward San Andres. This led the Carranza vanguard into the trap, which Villa is said to have set for them.

The bandits, who were hidden in the rocky defiles along the railroad, poured a heavy fire into the Carranza troops from behind rocks, according to the report. The same source of information claims to have confirmation of the report that the Carranza troops then retreated to Santa Ysabel and Palomas and are now reported to be in Fresno, the first station west of Chihuahua.

Carranza officials here admit there had been heavy fighting between Chihuahua and Santa Ysabel, but General Gonzalez, in Juarez, insist that he had received no details of the fighting. General Jefeito Trevino sent an official denial today to General Francisco Gonzalez, in Juarez, that General Oznna had been killed during the fight with the Villa forces.

Villa Anna ranch, near Namiquipa, one of the Hearst properties, before he and his band suddenly left a week ago, according to a letter received here today from the managers of the ranch. They were hunting for caches of ammunition which they seemed unable to find.

They slaughtered 600 hives and turned their horses loose to feed in the cornfields while at the Hearst property. All available horses were also seized. Villa's men were only partially armed. On leaving, the men said they had been called to Santa Ysabel.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

The teachers and officers of the Christian Bible School will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howling, Forest avenue.

On Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 the ladies of the church will meet with Mrs. A. F. Stahl, at the parsonage, to arrange for the coming sale. Every lady in the church is asked to be present.

The Prayermeeting on Wednesday evening at 7 p. m. will be conducted by the Loyal Women's Class.

On Thursday evening at 7:15 there will be a cottage prayer meeting held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fausler, 1015 Forest avenue. The members in that neighborhood should attend.

There will be a service at the church, each night next week with a different speaker for nearly every evening. The ministers from Millersburg, Flemingsburg and other places have consented to be with this church for one of these services. A fuller announcement will be made later.

The combined service plan will be continued for a while longer. It meets with the approval of the majority of the members.

By a rising unanimous vote of the congregation of the Church Sunday Rev. Stahl was called upon to remain indefinitely in the work in this church. He has been minister in Maysville for the past four years, during which time there have been 162 members added to the church by baptism and 138 otherwise, making 300 in all.

There were eight new deacons selected by the congregation and a vote was taken to continue the combined service. This combined service has already been mentioned in this paper and is very successful. The service begins at 9:30 and closes at 11:15.

PERHAP HE MAY DIE

You have named as your Executive a friend. He is familiar with your affairs. You trust him. Suppose, however, he should die shortly after you and before your Estate is settled up. Wouldn't it throw your affairs into confusion? The Court would appoint an Administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo--and he wouldn't know any more about your affairs and how your Estate should be managed than the average layman knows about the meaning of these words. Name us as your Executor and you eliminate this "perhaps." We are a responsible corporation and do not die.
